LIFE SCIENCE INNOVATION AT CORNELL: HOW TO BRING YOUR RESEARCH TO THE COMMERCIAL REALM

September 25, 2015
2:00 – 3:00 pm
Biotechnology Building G-01
FREE Event!

Presenter: Marla Coppelino, Director of Business Development & Outreach, Center for Advanced Technology, Institute of Biotechnology

- Have I invented something? Thinking of yourself as an innovator in science
- Learn about life science inventors at Cornell University
- Learn how to navigate the pathways of invention disclosure, patents, commercialization
- Learn how your innovations can open the doors to a whole new world of grants

Even if you've been doing basic research in your lab, your findings could someday become important groundwork for an innovation that can benefit the world outside the ivory tower.

Come for the basics of understanding how your science can find the pathway from the lab to the outside world.

Whether you are a faculty member, research associate, postdoc, grad student, or undergrad, attending this hour could be life altering for you!

Bring your questions. See you there.
